TREE COMMITTEE—FREE SEEDLINGS AT EARTHFEST

The Tree Committee is delighted to announce the third annual tree seedling giveaway at the Swampscott Earth Fest celebration on April 27th. This year 100 American Hornbeam seedlings will be distributed free on a first come, first served basis beginning at 10:00 AM. The cost of the seedlings is being funded again this year by the Swampscott Conservancy. The Tree Committee wishes to thank the Conservancy for its ongoing support.

The American Hornbeam (Carpinus caroliniana) is native eastern North America. It is a medium-sized tree that reaches a height of 20 to 30 feet. It has fuzzy green and yellow flowers in the spring and in the fall its leaves turn an attractive orange-red color. The hornbeam is commonly called musclewood from the appearance of its smooth bark with bumps resembling muscles. Plant a hornbeam seedling in your front or back yard to expand Swampscott's tree canopy. You'll feel good about doing your part to help clean and cool the air, reduce flooding and create a food source and shelter for local critters.

CONSERVATION COMMISSION—INVITES SHS STUDENTS TO GET ENGAGED!

The Swampscott Conservation Commission invites Swampscott High School students who are in grades 10-12 to consider joining the Commission as a youth member for a set period of time, typically a one-year term. The students will be mentored by a Commission member. If applicable, participation in the program may be able to be counted toward the student's volunteer work required for graduation.

Participation in this program will provide the student with a real-life learning opportunity in the functioning of local government while allowing them to gain an understanding of the Massachusetts Wetlands Protection Act, the state law governing protection of wetlands and other natural resources.

The selected candidate will be expected to take part in Commission proceedings and discussions and interact with the Commission members; however, due to legal constraints the youth member will not have a formal vote in any decisions made by the Commission.

Participation will involve attending Commission evening public hearings, typically held remotely once a month, as well as an opportunity to go on site visits and research issues of interest for the Commission. Information about the Conservation Commission can be found at: www.swampscottma.gov/conservation-commission

Any student who is interested in applying to be a youth member should contact the Swampscott Conservation Commission's Agent, Marissa Meaney, at mmeaney@swampscottma.gov or 781-596-8829 x 1271.
